Survey shows residents want lawsuit settled out of court

A recent phone survey of Romulus residents conducted by an independent research firm has indicated that a strong majority want a settlement of the ongoing lawsuit against Environmental Disposal Systems (EDS).

The city has been embroiled in legal wrangling with the disposal firm in efforts to prevent the operation of a hazardous waste injection well in the city. To date, the city legal fees have exceeded $300,000 in the matter, according to documents released by the administration.

The survey, conducted by Moore and Associates, Inc. in Southfield, was funded by EDS, and is estimated to have cost about $5,000.

Random numbers were selected from the phone directory and about 300 responses were recorded, according to the polling company. Interviewers asked qualifying questions of respondents, and only register voters living in the city of Romulus were interviewed, according to Douglas Wicklund, president of EDS. Wicklund said that the only other restriction placed on the polling company was that no city officials were to be interviewed.

Results of the polls, validated by Moore and Associates, indicate that 63 percent of those interviewed wanted the matter settled out of court.

"We have invested in Romulus and we're here to stay. These events have to be put behind us. Polls indicate the majority of citizens want a settlement. We are ready, willing and able to settle and we request that the city sit down with us to discuss the matter."

- Douglas Wicklund

After being asked the qualifying questions regarding residency and registration, respondents were asked, "Are you in favor or opposed to paying increased property taxes to provide the city with the funds to pursue the lawsuit against EDS?" Results indicate that 62 percent of the subjects were opposed to spending city funds on the matter and 32 percent were in favor of the action. Six percent refused to answer or didn't know.

The second question, "Are you in favor or opposed to having the city take money away from existing city services to pursue the lawsuit against EDS?" received 72 negative responses and only 22 percent favorable answers. Again, 6 percent didn't know or refused to answer.

The third question, "Should the city continue spending the taxpayers' dollars for legal costs to pursue the lawsuit against EDS or should the city settle the lawsuit out of court?" found 63 percent of the respondents against the action and 27 percent in favor. To this question, 10 percent said they didn't know or refused to answer.

Wicklund indicated that he felt this was strong evidence that the June vote on the matter was definitive of the way residents feel about the issue. "Those election results were very significant. If the election were held today, the results would be the same. The people want the matter settled, and they want it settled out of court. They don't want their money spent on this," Wicklund said.

"We have invested in Romulus and we're here to stay. These events have to be put behind us. Polls indicate the majority of citizens want a settlement. We are ready, willing and able to settle and we request that the city sit down with us to discuss the matter," Wicklund added.

Mayor Beverly McAnally was not available for comment on the matter.

School chief resigns

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Before presenting board members with options for cutting $1.3 million from the budget or requesting an enhancement millage, Wayne-Westland Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas announced his resignation Monday night citing the move as one in the best interest of the community, students and his own future in education.

Board members voted 5-1 to approve the resignation effective June 30, 1995, with Trustee Laurel Raisanen opposed and Secretary Vicky Welty absent.

Raisanen implored other board members not to approve the resignation, receiving a standing ovation from many of the 150 citizens in attendance.

"Those who embrace the status quo prevail. Instead of working on curriculum, our board must focus their attention on replacing Dr. Thomas and lose yet another year of development," Raisanen said.

Citing the positive changes which have occurred in the district since he became superintendent, Thomas referred to the new student code of conduct, the five-year curriculum plan to improve instruction, the new alternative education program, a 23-percent increase in Michigan Ed-

Flight 255 victims honored

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Seven years ago a dedicated 31-year-old Michigan father held his baby daughter in his arms as the family happily celebrated the toddler's first birthday.

The father, Douglas Hagler, then had to interrupt the celebration so that he could travel to Detroit Metro Airport and where he was to depart for a one-day business trip to Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. Hagler never returned. He was among the 156 passengers who died in the fiery crash of Northwest Flight 255 only seconds after take off. Mr. Hagler's survivors attended the memorial service last Tuesday evening at the small hill at the intersection of Middlebelt Road and I-94, where the victims' bodies were strewn after the crash.

His widow, four daughters and other family members, along with hundreds of others attended the solemn dedication and unveiling of a massive black stone monument to the victims.

The memorial service, the last of a series of large scale annual remembrances for the Flight 255 victims, began shortly after 7 p.m. in bright sunlight. It concluded in the dusk more than two hours later with the annual reading of the names of the victims.

Bonnie Hagler-Boyd of Burton revealed how her husband, Doug, had left the party seven years ago, while the remainder of the family remained to mark her daughter, Kimberly's, birthday.

"I knew nothing about the crash," she explained, "until one of Doug's business associates called from Phoenix with the news that his plane had crashed. I couldn't believe it."

Later, the widow explained, she was given Doug's wristwatch that had stopped at 8:46 p.m., the time of the crash. "I'm here to tonight mainly for our four daughters, particularly for Kimberly, who sadly never got to know her father well."

In the midst of the memorial service, the Rev. Jim Wiegand, pastor of the Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church of River Rouge, told the overflow crowd, "This hill has changed dramatically in seven years. Hours after the crash on Sunday Aug. 16, 1987, the hill looked like a sea of yellow blankets as bodies were strewn all over the hillside."

"A year later the yellow blankets were gone, but the mourning relatives and friends of the crash victims

Third crew Ford creates 900 new jobs at truck plant

By MARGO DEWEY
Deputy News Editor

Ford Motor Co. officials announced Aug. 22 they will add a third production crew at the Michigan Truck Plant in Wayne which will create approximately 900 new jobs, mostly hourly.

The plant builds the top-selling Ford F-Series pickup truck and the popular Ford Bronco.

"We're excited about being chosen to launch the three-crew operation here at Michigan Truck," said Frank Foley, Michigan Truck Plant manager. "We believe it's a win-win proposition for our employees, our union, the plant and the community. We look forward to working with the UAW (United Auto Workers) to make this three-crew launch successful for Ford Motor Co."

The new jobs will add approximately $25 million to the plant's $92-million annual payroll and will increase the plant's work force by more than 40 percent.

Michigan Truck Plant will invest $10.7 million in facilities and tooling to implement the new method of operation.

With the addition of the third crew, the annual production capacity at the plant will increase from 208,000 to 240,000 units which is a 32,000-unit hike. The third crew is expected to begin operating in February 1995.

"On Feb. 6 of next year, we'll be adding to Michigan Truck a third crew, and we're doing this because we want to keep this F-Series truck in a leadership role," said Bob Transou, group vice president-manufacturing, Ford Automotive Operations.

"We want to continue to build the best vehicle in America. In fact, we see the demand for trucks continuing to grow, and we want to be ready for that growth. We're aggressively looking to increase the market share and sales volume. The additional truck capacity provides us the opportunity to do that."

Transou said Ford now sells nearly an equal number of trucks and passenger cars in the U.S.

"For the first seven months in 1994 our total truck volume was up 14 percent from the same period last year and really up 35 percent over the last two years," Transou said. "The F-series truck has topped the charts as America's best-selling vehicle for 12 years in a row."

Transou said July marked the 10th consecutive monthly sales record and the 15th record in 16 months.

Michigan Truck Plant in Wayne is the first Ford plant in North America to adopt the three-crew operating pattern.

"The new jobs will increase the plant's work force by more than 40 percent from 2,100 to approximately 3,000," Transou said. "We worked with the UAW to implement the three-crew operation rather than the more traditional 'round-the-clock' three-shift arrangement."

"The primary advantage of having a three-crew operation is it permits more regular and effective equipment maintenance."

In a three-crew operation there are two 10-hour shifts per day, Monday through Friday, plus one 10-hour shift each on Saturday and Sunday, according to Transou.

"We're delighted to bring this good news to Michigan Truck, a plant with a great management team, great employees and an unrelenting commitment for quality," Transou said. "We intend to continue to provide our customers with the highest levels of quality anywhere in the world."

Transou said candidates are now being screened to fill the new production-line and skilled-trades positions. Those individuals interested should

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Romulus seniors win gold medals

Four Romulus senior citizens won gold medals at the recent Senior Olympics conducted in Lincoln Park.

One senior, Clara Drogos, earned three gold medals in the fields of horseshoes, frisbee toss and softball throw.

Others who won gold medals were Merle Kelly for basketball shoot, Frank Mate for bocci ball competition and Ruth Carter for frisbee toss.

Garold Hoffer of Romulus also won four silver medals for bowling, ping pong, basketball shoot, and golf closest to the pin.

Other silver medal winners were Paul Darman for frisbee toss, Helen McDonald for ping pong, and Marguerite Bush, Helen Mate, Evelyn Gravina and Armond Gravina, all for bocci ball.

Eight Romulus seniors also won bronze medals. They were Margaret and George Felenchak for pinocle, Irene Wegienka for bocci ball, Clara Drogos for shuffle board, Bobby McCoy, Richard Kowalewski, Merle Kelly and Leonard Dombeck, all for golf scramble.

Retired teacher cited by board

Retired Romulus teacher Rosemary Hedin was honored by the Romulus Community School Board of Education members Monday night.

A resolution marking Hedin's 16 years of "dedicated, loyal and outstanding service to the schools" was approved unanimously by the trustees.

Hedin served as a special education teacher for numerous schools in past years and last year served as a fifth grade teacher at Barth School.

Wick Elementary School Principal Chuck Shamey told school officials that Hedin was best known for her "love of the children" during her years with the district.

Romulus girl named as all star

Jennifer Roberts of Romulus became the first all state softball player to be recognized at Southgate Aquinas High School this summer.

Jennifer, daughter of Bernie and Cle Roberts of Romulus, was a four-year starting left fielder for the Aquinas team, garnering a fielding average of .990 and a batting average of .372.

She also won the All-League, team MVP and Coaches awards.

When Roberts, the team captain is not playing softball, she can be found playing basketball, ice skating or golfing. She also enjoys playing the piano.

She earlier attended St. Aloysius Catholic School in Romulus.

She is planning to enter Ferris State University next month.

School lunch prices may rise

Student lunch prices are expected to rise 15 cents per student this fall to help eliminate the $40,000 cafeteria deficit from last year, throughout the Romulus school district.

Joel R. Carr, assistant school superintendent, urged the board of education members to accept the recommendation of the district Cafeteria Supervisor Theresa McCann for a hike from $1.35 to $1.50 in elementary schools and from $1.50 to $1.65 at the secondary schools.

Audit shows smaller deficit

A release of the audit estimate figures for the Romulus School District for 1993-94 shows the district "expenses were less (than earlier expected), which in turn reduced the deficit and increased this year's surplus," Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell said Monday.

The estimate said that district expenses are expected to be $28,531,911 instead of $28,651,799. The carryover district deficit is expected to be $1,931,395.

apply through the Michigan Employment Security Commission office in Canton Township.

Jeff Washington, UAW Local 900 president, said he is proud of the new addition.

"I don't think I can think of anything to be more proud of than this third crew coming on here at our location," said Washington. "I think hats need to go off to our negotiators. It's like anything else, if you don't have a good working relationship or a good team of people in place, nothing works."

"We hope one day we'll have five or six other plants out here. But, if it is going to work anywhere in the world, and at Ford, it's going to work here."

Wayne Mayor Ken Warfield said he couldn't be more proud to live in the City of Wayne with the new development at Ford.

"This is fantastic, and there is more to come," said Warfield. "I think it can only get better."

Wayne Mayor Pro Tem Ed Phillips was very pleased with Wayne being selected for the three-crew operation.

"With the added job opportunities and economic impact on our town, this is a great day for Wayne," Phillips said.

Wayne Councilman Al Haidous said the new addition to the Michigan Truck Plant shows that the economy is improving not only in the U.S. but also in Wayne.

"I think we should be very proud that we were chosen," Haidous said. "For the last five or six years Ford has been expanding the plants, and this just shows once again a positive sign not only for Ford but also for the city."

Councilman Al Damitio predicts new vehicles could be developed as a result of the third-crew addition.

"I think a lot of people are looking forward to the new jobs and products being developed at Ford," Damitio said.

Wayne City Manager John Zech said he is very pleased with the Ford expansion.

"I believe it will only solidify Ford's position in the City of Wayne," Zech said.

The Michigan Truck plant opened in 1964.

ucation Assessment Program (MEAP) scores and revitalization of district-wide teaching and learning emphasis.

Combating funding shortfalls, Thomas, who makes an annual salary of $110,600, reiterated the district solutions including: pay-to-participate, a new latch key program and town meetings.

However, Thomas added, "There remain more important initiatives to be accomplished. It seems clear that despite my personal commitment, a new superintendent, selected specifically by this board, may recognize greater opportunity to succeed. I wish him all the luck in the world," Thomas added after the meeting.

According to Raisanen,

Thomas never had a chance to succeed from the moment he began working for the district.

"He's been criticized, ostracized, verbally attacked and humiliated. He had to walk on egg shells, constantly looking at the strengths and weaknesses. He was sabotaged," Raisanen said. "He knew our buildings needed more support, but the board wouldn't give it to him. The personnel he recommended were denied."

Raisanen added that Thomas was the first superintendent in recent years to end the blaming of students for district problems.

"After watching this district and students decline over the past three years, I realized it was happening at the top, too. Only good performance was emphasized and the bad was the fault of the students," Raisanen said. "He says we can do a better job. What a relief to my ears after years and years of blaming the students."

The trustee also asked other employees to voice their support of Thomas, but added that "pressure from their peers and for their careers will keep them silent."

However, several residents expressed their disappointment in Thomas' departure.

"I thought you'd have the gumption to stay with the district. The downfall of this district started years ago. We didn't like what we had here," Westland resident Betty Talmadge said. "Some of you have gotten in by the old guard and the old guard is not going to be happy until they're back in power."

"I knew it was coming," Westland resident Gerald Mercier said. "My last student is in high school and I'm happy he's under your direction."

loved ones. They sat or stood hugging each other as various love songs, poems and remembrances were presented.

Betty Polec, the prime activist in the memorial effort, gave the 'welcoming address and was warmly praised by pastors and family members alike.

Revs. Wieging and Ron Lund of the Bethany Lutheran Church of Roseville also were cited by family members for offering the "shoulders we needed to cry on."

County Sheriff's Detective Herb Lutz also was thanked repeatedly by family members. Lutz was responsible for making sure family members obtained as many of the personal belongings of their loved ones as could be found and identified.

Wieging said earlier this year, he had visited both the Vietnam Memorial and the Police Officers' Memorial. He took rubbings at both sites, the priest said, and receives much solace when he slides one of those rubbings out of his pocket and gazes at a loved one's name.

Many gathered early last Tuesday evening to share private moments near the pine tree planted in honor of their loved one. Each tree was accompanied by a small white wooden dove bearing the loved one's name and a small red heart marked with the number 255.

Police address family violence

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

With five to seven family violence arrests being made on the average every week in Romulus, Police Chief Robert Brown hopes that the city may be able to finally break the cycle of violence that has occurred in recent decades.

"People have learned to be violent," Brown declared "and now they have to learn to become non-violent."

"If we can accomplish that then many positive changes will take place in families and communities," the chief said. "If less verbal and physical abuse among adults occurs in a household there is a strong chance that fewer youth will join gangs, use drugs or become violent themselves."

Brown said new laws approved by the Michigan Legislature went into effect on July 1, making it mandatory local police effect arrests in family violence cases.

Prior to that the burden for making arrests often rested with the violence victims themselves, he said, and many times out of fear such charges would not be pressed and the violence would go on.

Or worse, he said, the charges could be dropped mid-stream by the victim, frustrating law enforcement and judicial officials.

One of the other key changes in the law, Brown said, is that victims must be notified of available local services.

Three such service units are First Step, a 24-hour help line and shelter located in Canton Township, Family and Neighborhood Services for Wayne County and the Legal Aid unit of Detroit.

The Romulus Police dispatcher and all the officers have been trained in how to respond to such violence cases, Brown said, and this fall the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office will offer four-hours of advanced training sessions to local police officers in the area of family abuse.

In preparation for those sessions, a Wayne County Domestic Violence handbook has been prepared by the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office and the Health Department.

The four-stage cycle of violence is described as:

- The incident (any type of abuse occurs including those of physical, sexual and emotional natures.)

- The honeymoon that includes apologies by the abuser, gifts to the victim or denials that incident occurred.

- The calm period, when the incident is forgotten, no abuse takes place and "honeymoon" promises are kept.

- Tension-building time when minor incidents begin again, communication breaks down, the victim feels the need to placate the abuser and tension again becomes unbearable.

Then Brown said, the cycle begins again, but the "incident" becomes more aggressive or more violent than the first.

"What we are seeking to do with the new action plan," the chief explained, "is to nip the cycle immediately after the first incident. By doing that we can reduce the number of repeat offenders and also save some marriages and family units."

But Brown was careful in reminding the public, family violence is not catalogued strictly as spousal abuse. "In our records, it can also be parent-child, brother-sister or even a family member and former in-law or ex-boyfriend," he said.

Family abuse takes on all types of faces, he said, and in some cases police arrest both parties if joint violent acts occurred.

"We feel fortunate that the state legislature has given us the tools and city government has totally endorsed the current police procedures," Brown said.

Since many policemen across the land have been seriously injured or even killed in responding to family violence cases in the past, Brown said, just raising the awareness of the issue has helped make police officers' lives much safer.

"The keys to curtailing such violence," the chief continued, "is to have families understand that violence just doesn't happen once. It will reoccur again and again if unchecked, and each time it gets more violent than the previous occurrence."

Area seniors enter world of technology

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Eighteen Romulus senior citizens recently visited Wick Elementary School to explore the world of technology first hand.

The seniors arrived aboard the Romulus Senior Center's bus and were met by a group of sixth graders, who escorted them into the technology area and took colored photos of the group with a special Zap camera.

The photos later were shown on the high resolution colored monitor.

The first of an expected series of senior citizen visits was coordinated by City Recreation Director Brian Hitsky and Senior Citizen Coordinator Marilyn Hoffer.

The seniors were treated to coffee, juice and rolls during the welcoming address by Principal Chuck Shamey and the introduction to technology talks by staff members and students.

Media Tech Specialist Joann Bjork demonstrated the delivery by the Integrated Information System that allows teachers instant access to the video cassette recorder, laser discs, compact disc units, as well as cable and satellite transmissions.

Seeing their own photos during the interactive video demonstration garnered the most applause from the visiting senior citizens, Shamey reported.

The seniors were also given time to interrelate with the students, who were working on reading, writing and math lessons.

Wick School students also treated their senior citizen guests to a free luncheon and helped clean the lunchroom after the servings.

Following a brief instruction period by Bjork, the seniors were allowed to work at the computer stations with the students as their guides.

It wasn't long before the seniors were writing and designing their own material, Shamey said.

When seniors asked to know when they could come back, Shamey said that after school and night time classes are already being set up for this fall.

Shamey cited the senior citizens as "one of the finest groups" the school has entertained since the technology program has been completed.

Woodstock 94' 25th anniversary draws crowds, clouds

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

There were a lot of similarities between the original Woodstock and the 25th anniversary concert this month - thousands of people, dozens of top bands, a mood of excitement and a sea of mud.

"I loved it. It was exciting - better than I had expected. But, the mud was hard to get used to. It got to be depressing," said Monticello (Monty) Van Odom of Van Buren Township, who traveled to the three-day concert with three friends.

The adventure of the 20-year-old music fan and his three friends started off well, he said.

"We got there early, about 2 a.m. Friday morning, and we only had to wait an hour for a bus to bring us to the concert area," he said. "We pitched our tent, and waited for the music to begin at noon."

Of all of the bands on the Friday itinerary, the Van Buren Township youth favored the Violent Femmes.

"It was a surprise act, and really the highlight of the day for me. The bands were good all weekend, and there were some big names there," he said, noting that Joe Cocker, Metallica, Aerosmith, Bob Dylan, Red Hot Chili Pepper, Peter Dinklage and Santana were among the dozens of musicians present.

"It was a once-in-a-lifetime experience, and it was great to be part of it. There were people of all ages - mostly young, but a lot of older people, too," he said. "Everything about it was great. There were so many people so close together."

He noted that there were so many tents on the grounds that walking around them was like going through a maze.

"The weather was nice, and the first day was a good one. It started raining on Saturday, and that wasn't too bad. But, when we got up on Sunday and it was still raining, it was not very pleasant," he said. "One of my friends and I slept under a tarp attached to a tent on the first two nights, but on Saturday we crawled into the two-man tent with our friends. There were mud puddles in the tent and no one got much sleep. A lot of people didn't even try to sleep on Saturday, and we could hear them making noise all night."

While food was said to be very expensive at the festival, the local festival-goer observed that Pepsi and Mountain Dew were sold for $2, hot dogs were $2, hamburgers were $3 and chicken sandwiches were $5.

The Michigan youths observed some use of drugs and alcohol at the music festival, but festival-goers did not flaunt their use of the substances as was done at the first Woodstock festival, he said.

When asked whether he would go to a third Woodstock festival in 2019, he said he is not sure at this point.

"I'll have to consider it then, if there's another concert," he said.

By 3 p.m. on Sunday, the four Michigan youths decided to get a head start on the traffic and head home.

"We waited three hours in line for a bus to get back to our vehicle. By the time we got on the bus, the line had grown so long that there was a 12-hour wait for buses," Odom said. "We had a great drive home. There were a couple of accidents that slowed traffic, but we didn't get into any major traffic jams."

After arriving home, he began to shake the mud out of his belongings.

"I lost souvenirs in the mud, and I still don't have all of the mud cleaned out of my backpack," he said. "I also lost a good pair of sandals. They were mud caked and I placed them outside the tent on Saturday night, and someone took them, mud and all."

The 1992 Aquinas High School graduate is working this summer for Keith Bruder Landscape Design and is attending Washtenaw Community College in the fall.

Salvation Army seeks support

Preparing for a tough season ahead for the hungry and needy families in Wayne County, the Salvation Army is seeking monetary support to restock its area food pantries in the Metro area.

The most seriously depleted pantry is reported to be at the Plymouth-Canton Salvation Army at 9451 S. Main St. in Plymouth.

Commander Lt. Randall VanLandingham urged area residents to drop off canned and dry food staples at the corps community center during regular office hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"The local Army staff passes out between 75 to 100 bags of groceries to families and individuals each week," he said. "Normally we aid about 20 families each week, but that number has doubled lately," VanLandingham stated, and that is part of the reason for the near depletion of the food supplies.

"Recently we had to purchase $800 worth of food just to fill our pantry for the coming week," he said. Some of the needed donations of foods are canned meats and fish products, pastas and dry or canned soups.

Lt. Col. William Speck, commander of the Eastern Michigan Division for the Salvation Army in Southfield, declared "we are also urgently asking for money to purchase food directly from our sources" so that we can more than triple the value of our donors' dollars.

For example, Speck said that the Salvation Army can buy three cans of food for the same price that a donor can buy a single can.

Speck also asked the public not to dump materials outside area Salvation Army community centers.

"It is costing us thousands of dollars to dispose of such unwanted materials and that money could be used in a more helpful way for other needs," Speck concluded.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF VAN BUREN
REGULAR BOARD MEETING MINUTES
AUGUST 16, 1994

Meeting called to order by Supervisor Jakoces at 7:30 p.m. Present: Supervisor Jakoces, Clerk King, Treasurer Foster, Trustee Cicotte, Trustee Clark, Trustee Rochowiak and Trustee Tomaino. Others in attendance: Deputy Fire Director Smolen, Lt. K. Brooks, Executive Assistant Ireland, Developmental Services Director McNally, Deputy Director Developmental Services Andree, Community Services Director Belcher, Secretary Budd and an audience of forty-five.

AGENDA: Motion King, support Rochowiak to approve the agenda as presented. Carried.

PUBLIC HEARING: Motion King, support Clark to open the public hearing to consider the request from L & W Engineering Company for an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate. Carried. Supervisor Jakoces read into the record a letter from Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce President Gerald E. McKelvey urging the Board to reconsider its past policy on abatements and to grant this tax abatement.

Treasurer Foster explained the tax structure in light of Proposal A and other new laws and suggested this could be the basis for a reexamination of the township's position, thus enabling the township to become a partner with business. Each applicant could then be reviewed based on its pattern of success and quality, investment in the community and sizable job growth and opportunities. Further, she indicated that L & W Engineering Company has had a successful growth pattern and has made an investment in this community.

Representatives from L & W Engineering Company provided an oral and visual presentation on the history of the company and its future goals. In response to market demand, L & W Engineering is desirous of expanding its operating capacity and manufacturing capabilities and is requesting that Van Buren Township approve an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate abating 50% of the Real and Personal Property Taxes on the proposed $25,000,000 in new facilities and equipment for a period of 12 years as allowed under Act #198, Public Act of 1974. They further stated that this proposed expansion will result in the hiring of 71 new associates in skilled and unskilled positions.

Residents, business members and the Van Buren Public Schools Superintendent spoke in favor of granting the tax abatement. Resident expressed his concern about a proposed property line easement since his property abuts L & W Engineering Company on the north. Matter was referred to Public Service Director McNally. Resident asked that in the light of General Motors situation at Willow Run, what would happen if the company left the community. Treasurer Foster explained that the new law requires an agreement between the Public Act #198 industry and the township and those types of issues will be addressed.

There being no further discussion, motion Foster, support Tomaino to close the public hearing. Carried.

MINUTES: Motion Cicotte, support Clark to approve the Work Study Session Minutes of July 18, 1994 as presented. Carried.

Motion Rochowiak, support Tomaino to approve the Regular Board Meeting Minutes of July 19, 1994 as presented. Carried.

CORRESPONDENCE: Supervisor announced that beginning in September the Public Safety Department will be co-sponsoring the radio program Dragnet on WAAM, 1600 AM dial, on Friday, 6:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

Buren Township Police to recognize victims of traffic accidents who were saved by wearing seat belts. Recipients and new members of the "Saved by the Belt" Club are Debra, Jason, Joshua and Jessica Etherton, Connie Daugherty and Betty Holloway. This program is intended to encourage motorists to buckle up at all times. The Citizens' for Public Safety Committee has had banners printed stating "Call Police" which were available after the Board meeting or anytime from the Public Safety Department. Committee Member McKelvey stated the purpose of the banner is to not only alert other motorists to a need but to also serve as protection. He thanked the businesses which responded with donations to provide the literature and banners.

Citizens' for Public Safety Chairman Herman stated that because of the community's support in the passage of the Public Safety Millage, whereby citizens were educated, fund raisers held, literature drops conducted and one on one contacts made, he has begun the process of filing the necessary paper work to dissolve the committee. He thanked everyone for their support and offered the Committee's assistance if ever needed again.

Judge Rogalle and Court Administrator Ramsey reported that the 34th District Court has issued 1,500 warrants, has been rated as outstanding and operates in the black. All the steps recommended by the Supreme Court Audit have been implemented to put checks and balances in place and the budget has been reduced. Dear Ms. Willett:

The following are the results from a telephone survey conducted by Moore & Associates, Inc. for Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS). The questionnaire used for the survey was developed by Moore & Associates, Inc. in consultation with EDS. The random-digit-dial telephone survey was conducted August 19 and 22 among 300 registered voters in Romulus and contained the following questions. The findings are presented by the percentage of people giving that response.

Description of Situation

In June there was a school board and special election. In this election Proposal A, which asked for a one mill property tax increase to establish an environmental protection fund to be used for pending and future legal and non-legal matters, did not pass. As you may know, the city of Romulus is involved in a lawsuit against the deepwell owned by Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. also called EDS. I'd like to ask you a couple of quick questions about what you think the city should do now.

Survey Questions and Results

1. Are you in favor or opposed to paying increased property taxes to provide the city with the funds to pursue the lawsuit against EDS?
1 In favor - 32% 2 Opposed - 62% 3 Don't know/Refused - 6%
2. Are you in favor or opposed to having the city take money away from existing city services to pursue the lawsuit against EDS?
1 In favor - 22% 2 Opposed - 72% 3 Don't know/Refused - 6%
3. Should the city continue spending the taxpayer's dollars for legal costs to pursue the lawsuit against EDS or should the city settle the lawsuit out of court?
1 Pursue - 27% 2 Settle - 63% 3 Don't know/Refused - 10%

Percentages may vary by 5.7% points at the 95% confidence level.

As with all surveys we conduct, interviewers are instructed to read the questions verbatim and the identity of the client is not disclosed at any time during the survey. Participation in the survey is voluntary and respondents can terminate the interview at any time.

If there are any further questions, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

JoAnn Rossi
Vice President

Candidate knocks on doors

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

When John Schall knocked on the door of a senior citizen's home recently, the appearance of the 13th Congressional District candidate surprised the homeowner.

"I remember when politicians used to do this," he told Schall after his initial shock.

"I've knocked on doors in every city and township in the 13th District since I entered the race," Schall said, noting that the district is home to more than 580,000 people in 12 cities and 13 townships.

Schall said he has brought his door-to-door campaign to more than 10,000 households.

"It's a large area and a diverse one. I'm really running in three separate areas of the district - Ann Arbor, the northern suburbs and the Interstate-94 corridor.

Schall's campaign schedule is so busy that he has trouble remembering what day or date it is.

"All I know is that it is 82 days until the Nov. 8 general election," Schall said last Thursday. "I can't keep track of the date, but any day I can tell you exactly how many more days it is until the general election."

Schall's family has been involved in the campaign since "day one," he said.

"I have an instant army of volunteers. I've got a large family and everyone is involved in the campaign. When I was growing up in a small house in Livonia with seven kids in the family, I didn't realize what an asset a large family can be. My brothers and sisters are going door to door to campaign for me and my nieces and nephews are also helping. Heather, 14, and Jason, 12, are working on the campaign and my father, who is 76, and my mother collected signatures for me in February and March. It's a good feeling to know that they are there to support me."

Fourteen and 15 hour days are not unusual for Schall, and although he expected a grueling campaign schedule, he said that one never really knows the extent of the time involved until he or she is in the midst of it.

"It (campaigning) really consumes one's life. For example, today, I had breakfast in Plymouth with the mayor at 7:30 a.m., followed by a meeting with my campaign team at 8:30 a.m. At 10 a.m. I was in Ann Arbor with supporters planning a fund raiser, and at noon I met with regional director of the National Republican Committee," he said. "Following the interview at the Associated Newspaper office, I have a meeting with grassroots supporters, then I'm visiting the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival at 5:30 p.m. and I'm meeting with Wayne County Young Republicans at 6:30 p.m. At 7:30 p.m., I'm back in Ann Arbor for another meeting with Republican supporters."

Most days are similar with dawn to dusk meetings, interviews and appearances.

"There is always another hand to shake or another person to meet," Schall said. "But, it has been fun. Ninety-five percent of it is terrific. The best part is meeting people and talking with them."

"They don't want to hear what I have to say as much as they want me to listen to them," Schall said. "They tell me that government is too big, it spends too much money and it wastes too much money. They see government intruding into parts of their lives where it doesn't belong. Basically, they don't trust government."

Schall said the people he talks to are more interested in seeing "the holes plugged in our health care system" than a re-vamping of medical care.

"I'm finding that the greatest source of wisdom is the people themselves," Schall said.

Editor's note: This is the first in a continuing series of articles about candidates on the campaign trail. In future editions, articles on all of the local candidates will be published.

The final run? Wayne coach seeks support to keep cross country 'alive'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Bob Lynn knows how it feels to be a winner.

As a prep at Inkster High School in 1966, Lynn captured a gold medal in the high hurdles event, competing at the Class B state championships.

In 1969, as a member of Eastern Michigan University's shuttle hurdle relay team, Lynn teamed up with Bill Tipton, Alton Davis and Jerry Crulla to post a 28.6 in the 70-yard high hurdles event to establish a world record.

And, for the past 15 years, the veteran Wayne Memorial coach has been fielding exceptional track & field teams.

However, last year, Lynn found himself without a cross country team, a victim of pay-to-participate. This year, could be a repeat - it could be the final run. As the deadline to put together a team for the 1994 campaign nears, Lynn doesn't have enough women runners out to field a team.

"I am very concerned about what is happening here at Wayne," Lynn noted. "Wayne has had a tradition for fielding outstanding teams and producing topnotch athletes.

"We are seeing the numbers dwindle, not only here but in other districts, and we need to reverse that tide if we are to provide our children with an all-around education," Lynn said.

An educator who has now spent nearly a quarter of a century in the classroom, Lynn believes that parental involvement is the key to improving athletics as well as academic programs in a school district.

"Track helped me be what I am today," Lynn continued. "It helped me reach some of my goals in life. And I have stressed this whenever and wherever I can. Without the help of the parents, sports will become, if it is not presently, an endangered species in high school.

Lynn said he is seeking support from the community and from the parents of the kids who want to learn the necessary skills to compete not only on the field but in life."

Wayne is affiliated with the Mega Conference, a conference made up of approximately 24 local and area high schools which are divided into divisions according to their talents. Despite the fact that they didn't have a girls' cross country team, the Zebras are placed in the Red Division, the toughest of the divisions.

Although the designation is a tribute to Wayne's past athletic achievements, it also could be a deterrent to cross country.

"I would think that the officials would place us in one of the other divisions at first," Lynn said. "It would be tough competing against teams like Monroe, a perennial Class A state title challenger.

Ex-Wayne grid star makes Broncos' roster

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

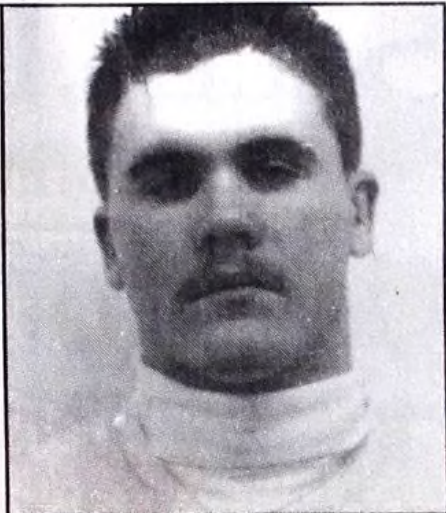

Despite the loss of Pierre Hixon to graduation, Western Michigan University will have at least one former area star on its football roster this fall.

Hixon earned all-Mid-American Conference recognition for his stellar performances in the secondary for the Broncos, who finished with a 7-3-1 overall record for their efforts a year ago.

Hixon, a former Wayne Memorial star, was the key to the secondary that appeared formidable most of the 1993 campaign.

The Broncos are rebuilding their defensive network.

And one of the building blocks is Jason Bodden, also a former Wayne Memorial versatile athlete who was an All-area selection in 1991 both in ning ability and loves to chase the football."

Initially recruited as an inside linebacker, Jason appears more comfortable at the defensive end slot, a position he occupied during his prep career.

Western Michigan should again challenge for the MAC title. Coach Al Molde figures to have the most experienced team during his eight-year tenure at WMU.

Returning are 45 of 54 total lettermen, 18 of 22 starters, plus the top punter and kicker. They'll be backed by a red-shirted freshman class that will make a strong push for playing time.

The Broncos will launch the 1994 campaign on Sept. 3 at 1 p.m. against Miami. They will open the home phase of their season at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 8 against Western Illinois.

3 share junior golf title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Three young golfers will share the 1994 Junior Golf Tournament title.

The three - Brandon Goll, Steven Lueck and Ryan Johnston - finished in a dead heat for nine holes in the division for 13-15 year olds. The trio carded 43's in the tournament sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department and staged last weekend at Fellows Creek Golf Course.

Three other golfers in the same division also were forced to share runner-up honors as Matt Marcos, Chris Scott and Brent Mullin finished one-stroke behind the leaders. They checked in with 44's.

Brian Bridges and Nick Roedding were tied for third, each walking off the course with 45's.

Tournament officials said that the format did not call for "sudden-death" playoffs.

The young golfers played nine holes with the top three in each of the age group divisions winning prizes, recreation officials added.

The three - Brandon Goll, Steven Lueck and Ryan Johnston - finished in a dead heat for nine holes in the division for 13-15 years old.

In the meantime, over in the 16-18 division, medalist Mike Rohn won a two-stroke victory over second-place finisher, Tim Lueck. Rohn carded a 43 for his nine-holes, while Lueck toured the course in 45. The third-place award went to Paul Britz, who finished with 46.

Matt Leon proved the best of the 10-12 year-old class.

Leon shot a 49 to edge second-place finisher Matt Staley for medalist honors. Brandon Volas was third with 51.

Not to be forgotten

Belleville father-son drag race team seeks unprecedented year

Belleville's Connie and Scott Kalitta, a father-son drag racing team, are probably the quickest and fastest father-and-son team in any form of motorsports.

They definitely would like to keep it that way.

And it's been said that if a pro driver wins the NHRA Champion Auto Stores Nationals, chances are good that a Winston Championship inevitably will follow.

That's what the Belleville duo is shooting, excuse me, driving for this weekend.

The Kalittas, riding under the banner of the family-owned American International Airways, will be attempting to add credence to the theory when they compete in the 13th annual Top Fuel dragster event at Brainerd.

The Kalittas have been in a combined total of eight of the 12 final rounds completed. They remain the only multi-time event winners on the tour. While neither one has ever won the coveted Winston title, both have come close.

Scott finished number two last season, while his father finished third in 1982, 1984 and 1985.

With six races remaining in the 1994 season, Scott holds the lead in the chase for the Winston Top Fuel championship. He currently has a 1,754 point lead over second-place Joe Amato (9,694-7,940). Connie is fourth with 7,274 points, just 14 points behind third-place Don Prudhomme (7,288).

Coming back this year after an 18-month layoff to tend to business at his worldwide air cargo company located in the Van Buren Township- Willow Run area, Connie won the Gatornationals and Southern Nationals. Scott scored two runner-up finishes (Slick 50 Nationals and Gatornationals) before taking his first win at the Oldsmobile Springnationals.

The victory started the historic final-round streak for Scott. He went on to take titles at the Western Auto Nationals, Mile-High Nationals and Autolite Nationals making him the first Top Fuel driver ever to win four consecutive national events.

The streak, however, came to an end at the recently completed Northwest Nationals when he was runner-up to Joe Amato in the final round. It was the 32-year-old Kalitta's first setback since the Mopar Parts Nationals on May 22.

Though he hasn't competed in this event since 1991, the 56-year-old Connie Kalitta knows his way to the Brainerd International Raceway winner's circle. At the 1985 event the aviation entrepreneur was the number one qualifier and set low elapsed time and top speed of the meet enroute to a final round win over Gene Snow.

On two other separate occasions Kalitta made it to the semifinals.

Connie's crew chief Tim Richards also knows how to get to the winner's circle.

Man faces trial for armed robbery charges

Charged with two area robberies, and suspected in one other, a 26-year-old Dexter man was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court in connection with the armed robbery of a Westland business.

Ted Alexander Wade is being held on a $100,000 cash bond for the Westland crime and a $50,000 cash bond for a Canton Township robbery. He is also expected to be charged in connection with a Washtenaw County robbery, according to Canton Township Community Relations Officer Tammie Colling.

Wade was charged in connection with the July 10 robbery of Howard's Hoagies restaurant, located at 1553 S. Wayne Road in Westland.

According to a cook at the restaurant, Wade exited the store restroom around 6 p.m. and with his hand in his back pant pocket, approached the counter. As he was "swaying back and forth" Wade looked at the menu and about a minute later approached the counter, cook Kimberly Polovino said.

"He approached the counter with his hand in his back pocket and said, 'I have a gun in my pocket. I want all the money right now,'" Polovino testified.

Although the victim testified that she could not see a gun, she said she was frightened by the statement and placed the $307 in cash on the counter. According to testimony, the defendant grabbed the money and ran out the door.

Defense attorney John Groves attempted to prove there wasn't enough evidence to charge Wade with armed robbery.

"The facts do not support probable cause. The verbal claim is not enough. There has to be some non-verbal communication - showing of the weapon," Groves said.

However, District Judge C. Charles Bokos said the fact that the victim saw Wade exit the restroom with his hand in his pocket, "it was fashioned in such a way to lead a reasonable person to believe he had a gun."

Wade was arraigned in Canton Township for allegedly robbing the Clark gas station, located on the 44000 block of Ford Road, on July 9.

A station employee told police a white male in his late 20s entered the station at 2 p.m. and made a purchase. Once the employee opened the register, the robber allegedly told the attendant he had a gun and wanted the money.

The robber fled the scene on foot northbound from the location, according to Canton Township police.

Colling said police searched the scene and interviewed witnesses upon arrival.

"They put out an area broadcast," she said, "and learned that an armed robbery had occurred earlier in Washtenaw County. The description we received matched the description in the Washtenaw robbery except the man had a car."

An officer in Van Buren Township spotted the vehicle, matching the description of the get away car used in Washtenaw County, in a hotel parking lot, Colling said.

Wade is also awaiting trial on a stolen vehicle charge and armed robbery which occurred in May, according to Colling.

Driver dies in vehicle accident

An early morning collision took the life of a Dearborn Heights man Aug. 17. Canton Township police found Richard Anthony Virzi in a ditch at Ford Road and Canton Center at 5:50 a.m. His 1982 Ford Econovan ran the red light and struck a 1989 Ford pick-up truck, police said.

According to authorities, the van was traveling northbound on Canton Center while the truck proceeded eastbound on Ford Road. Neither of the drivers applied their brakes.

Virzi was transported to Oakwood-Canton Medical facility, where he died an hour later due to trauma and internal injuries. The other driver did not require any medical treatment.

Man pleads guilty to assault

- Terry Donohue

"The girl (victim) was an acquaintance who met the defendant that day," Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue said.

Daniel Lawrence Thompson pleaded guilty to fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct (CSC), a felony punishable up to two years in prison. Scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 23, Thompson was originally charged with third-degree CSC, which carries a maximum prison term of 15 years. He was released on a $5,000 personal bond pending sentencing.

The incident occurred April 30 when Thompson and a 21-year-old friend and two 13-year-old girls, all from Taylor, went to a residence located on the 7400 block of Affeldt Street in Westland, according to Donohue.

As the mega shopping establishments such as Meijers and Kmart keep expanding, other customer-oriented businesses are catching on to the consumer philosophy of the 1990s that "bigger is better."

A popular family restaurant chain in the western Wayne County area has definitely adopted the growth frenzy.

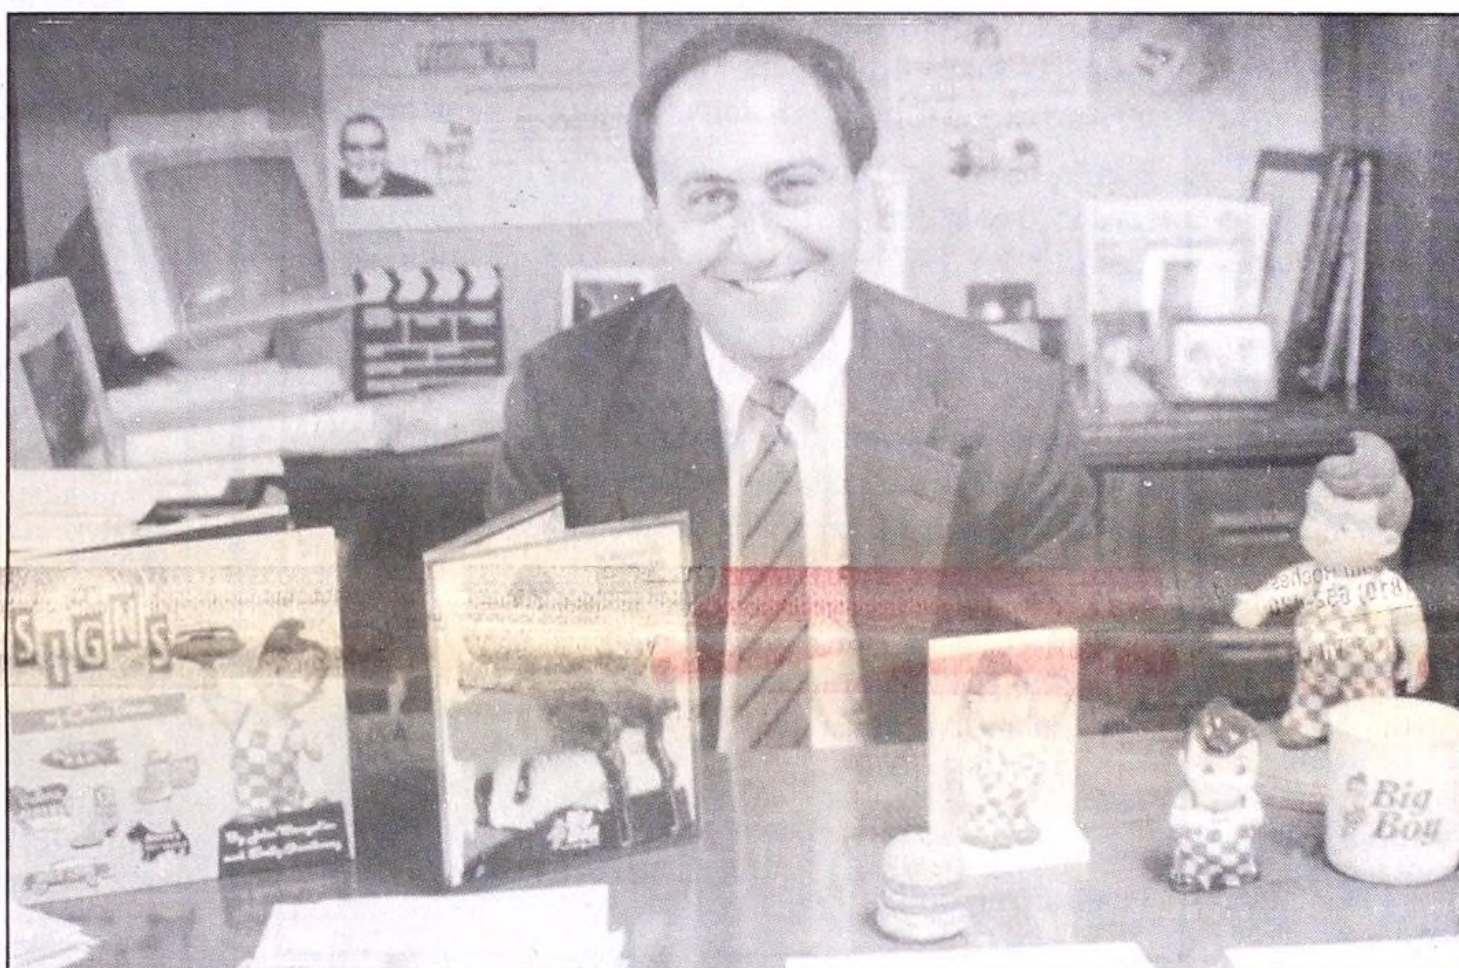

Elias Brothers Big Boy restaurants are headed for a major interior change. The outstanding quality and service, however, will remain the same, according to Tony Michaels, vice-president of marketing for Elias Brothers Restaurants Inc.

Major facelifts inside or outside the restaurant are not new to Big Boy. Since 1938, the restaurant owners have strived for the best for their customers, Michaels said.

"In 1938, the three brothers, Fred, Lou and John Elias, started the Dixie Drive-In," Michaels said. "As time went on, the brothers met Bob Wian who had started this Big Boy idea. He had one restaurant in Glendale, Calif."

Michaels said it was Wian who invented the Big Boy hamburger and double-deck hamburger.

"In the early 1950s, the three brothers decided to become the first Big Boy fran-chisee, according to Michaels.

"We own the Cleveland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, upstate New York and Ontario, Canada markets," Michaels said. "The rest are franchised. But, we're all part of a whole. We also franchise 65 units in Japan. A franchisee is opening in Saudi Arabia in another month."

"Oct. 1 we open in Madrid, Spain. We recently signed a deal for nine Asian countries including Indonesia."

As part of the major improvement plan for Elias, Big Boy, Michaels said it was time for the character Big Boy to speak.

"We thought we should bring him alive," Michaels said. "It was a difficult process to find the right voice. It took about a year. We listened to about 500 voices before selecting the one."

Michaels said Big Boy was kept as a statue with only his eyes and mouth moving because he felt it was enough for people to accept.

"If we simply brought him alive, it might have been a little strange," Michaels said. "This went over so well, and now we have further developed the brand so we have decided what he is going to say from now on."

The biggest development, however, for Elias Brothers Big Boy restaurants is the construction of gift shops in each eating establishment.

"We have now made a commitment to put gift shops in all of our restaurants," Michaels said. "The first store is at Baldwin and I-75. That's the prototype. We're gaging sales on a day-to-day basis to see what that store contributes to our overall operation."

Elias Big Boy merchandise includes the following: shirts, jerseys, sleep shirts, caps, collectible bottles, thermal mug, travel mug, baby bottle, Bic Stic pen, Parker pen, key chain, banks, dolls, shoes, socks and more.

"NBC Nightly News came out about 1 1/2 years ago and did a report on Big Boy merchandise," Michaels said. "They went nuts over it. They spent three minutes of their news segment on the merchandise. It's not only great stuff to give, but a lot of it is collectible items."

In the near future, Michaels said there

Tony Michaels (top), vice-president of marketing for Elias Brothers Restaurants Inc., said Big Boy officials were very pleased with their award for the best dessert menu (right). Customers can purchase Big Boy paraphernalia at participating stores.

"WE BELIEVE THAT IF WERE NOT SERVING QUALITY FOOD, WE WOULDN'T BE WHERE WE ARE TODAY. THAT IS WHAT THE THREE BROTHERS BELIEVED FROM DAY ONE. SADLY WE'RE DOWN TO ONLY ONE BROTHER NOW, LOUIS, BUT HE IS HERE EVERY DAY MAKING SURE THE QUALITY COMMITMENT IS THERE."

chisee," Michaels said. "Wian said to the brothers, 'Okay, I'll give you the rights to the City of Detroit.' The brothers then said, 'The City of Detroit, we want the State of Michigan.'"

It was at that time the three brothers started building Elias Brothers restaurants, according to Michaels.

"In the 1970s, Bob Wian sold the Big Boy franchise rights, not Elias Brothers, to the Marriott Corp. so we were then a franchisee of Marriott," Michaels said. "But, we were building Big Boy restaurants at a record pace through the 1960s and 1970s."

There are now 200 Big Boy restaurants in Michigan as well as hundreds more throughout the U.S. and in other countries, according to Michaels.

"In 1987, Marriott announced they were going to exit the restaurant business and pay attention to their hotels and airline people," Michaels said. "So, we purchased the worldwide Big Boy trademark from Marriott in 1987. We are now the worldwide holder of the Big Boy trademark."

There are approximately 900 restaurants worldwide. Some of the restaurants are franchised and some are owned by will be a complete redesign of Big Boy restaurants.

"The first one may show up at the airport," Michaels said.

Big Boy is known not only for its mouth-watering dessert menu which was recently named a first-place winner in the National Restaurant Association's 31st Great Menu Contest, but also for its health selections.

"With our health menu, I felt that we needed to speak to a broader audience from a healthier choice point of view which meant products that are lower in fat, lower in calories and sometimes lower in sodium," Michaels said. "We decided to develop these products that weren't different from what we previously had in the menu, but cooked it a different way."

"We wanted to show people what they are eating. We did this eight years ago. We had hospitals and doctors calling us saying they wanted to use it in classes. They thought it was terrific."

The health menu at Big Boy is endorsed by Beaumont Hospital.

"Whenever we launch a new product on that menu, we go to Beaumont and make sure it is acceptable to them," Michaels said.

What makes Big Boy so successful?

"We believe that if we were not serving quality food, we wouldn't be where we are today," Michaels said. "That is what the three brothers believed from day one. Sadly we're down to only one brother now, Louis, but he is here every day making sure the quality commitment is there."

School reveals accreditation plan

Wayne Memorial High School (WMHS) is currently in the process of receiving accreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

The standards of an association such as North Central provide a yardstick against which the community can measure its schools.

Accreditation provides justification for public confidence in its schools. It confirms that the school has the resources, the leadership, and the vitality necessary for ongoing improvement. The Wayne Memorial School Improvement Team (SIT) was put into place to help guide the school in meeting its requirements for accreditation.

In order to receive accreditation, Wayne Memorial implemented a three- to five-year plan in 1992 in which they focused on five goals to improve student success.

The five goals Wayne Memorial is trying to reach are:

- A student at Wayne Memorial High School who will recognize, respect and demonstrate behaviors which will indicate positive self-esteem and will establish personal goals.
- A student at Wayne Memorial High School who will believe that he/she can succeed in school and demonstrate behaviors that indicate a sense of responsibility for their own success.
- A student at Wayne Memorial High School who will attend and participate in class regularly.
- A student at Wayne Memorial High School who will learn skills that prepare them for every changing technology in the workplace.
- A student at Wayne Memorial High School who will be able to communicate in a variety of forms (orally, reading, writing).

Each goal was made into a task force, and the people involved with the task forces are working together to achieve their goal.

In February of this year North Central visited Wayne Memorial to evaluate the progress the school has made with their plan. North Central reported an "Interim" status which means Wayne Memorial has made successful progress toward achieving their goals.

The School Improvement Team and all task forces are open membership. Currently they consist of administrators, students, teachers, secretaries and other people involved with the school.

"We strongly encourage parents, business and community members to join SIT or one of the task forces because we recognize the importance of communication between these groups," said Valerie DeVore, spokesperson for WMHS SIT.

"The committee has only one hour of public SIT meetings usually take place on Wednesdays right after school.

"Task Force meeting days vary with each task force. SIT realizes that many people work during the hours the meetings are held, but in the past, several employers have been very cooperative in releasing their employees to attend meetings."

Anyone interested in joining SIT or one of the task forces or have any questions regarding school improvement can contact DeVore at (313)722-7616.

Task Force One deals with self-esteem and is currently working to form a partnership with Ford Motor Co. to help achieve their goal.

They are looking for other businesses to form partnerships with in order for students to have the chance to participate in internships or community service. The Student Assistant program is also helping students with their self-esteem.

The program helps students adjust to school, helps teach problem-solving and conflict resolution, as well as helps students who already may be parents.

The program is run by trained staff members for one hour a week. The hours rotate so students only miss one class period each marking period.

The program benefits many students, and if your child is interested, please call Karen Maier at (313)595-2214.

Task Force two which focuses on responsibility started a program that gave planners to students to help them become organized. The program was a great success and many students found the planners to be very helpful.

Task Force two would like to keep the program running and is asking businesses to help supply the planners. Please contact the school if your business is willing to help.

Task Force three concentrates on class attendance and student participation. Attendance is a very important factor in student success.

To stop a thief

Chevrolet features electronic system

Anyone who has found an empty parking space where his or her car was supposed to be, already knows the three stages of becoming an auto theft statistic.

First phase: Denial. "I must have parked it someplace else."

Second phase: Acceptance. "It's really gone."

Third phase: Anger. "I hope the lowlife catches something from the bag of dirty gym clothes in the trunk."

Chevrolet wants to spare customers the aggravation, inconvenience, and emotional turmoil of auto theft. That's why every new 1995 Lumina and Monte Carlo will have a sophisticated electronic theft-deterrent system as standard equipment.

The General Motors PASS-Key system is an effective means of discouraging thieves. A small resistor pellet embedded in the ignition key is literally the key to this high-tech anti-theft system. Electronic sensors read the pellet code when the key is inserted in the ignition switch. If the code is incorrect, the system instantly disables the starter motor and fuel system for several minutes. "Hot wiring" and similar techniques of auto thievery are also thwarted.

Without gasoline and a starter, a would-be car thief generally has two alternatives: he can find an easier mark, or give up a life of crime. In either case, the owner of a 1995 Lumina or Monte Carlo will feel more at ease knowing that the PASS-Key is working to discourage even the most persistent thief.

There's strong historical evidence that the PASS-Key system is an effective crime stopper. The theft rates for Corvettes and Camaros were near the top of the chart in the mid-80s. The Pass-Key system cut Corvette thefts by 24 percent in the first year after its introduction in 1986 -- and slashed Camaro thefts by 66 percent when the system was added in 1989.

The insurance industry has noted the effectiveness of the PASS-Key system, too. Vehicles equipped with the system qualify for a premium discount from many insurers.

Plaid is hot for school fashions

It's time for shoppers of all ages to assemble their back-to-school wardrobes, and the options this season look fresh, young and functional.

One key look is plaid, and it's turning up in some unexpected places, according to Kathie Betts, Sears trend manager.

"Young shoppers are 'mad for plaid' this season," Betts said. "It's a look that they favor throughout their wardrobes, not only in major items like pleated skirts and body suits but also in accessories, for example, handbags and headbands.

"Plaid also is popular in shirts and jackets."

Betts said that bright red as well as black and white are among the hottest plaid color treatments.

Plaids also are showing up in muted color treatments, however, making it easy to mix with other patterns. For example, a pleated skirt in a soft, subtle plaid can be paired with a striped top in bold colors.

Those kicky pleated skirts, including kilts, are another key fall fashion. They're paired with ribbed sweaters or tops cropped at the waist.

Menswear-look suspenders (often sold with the skirts, as well as separately as accessories) are a fun way to pull the look together. New over-the-knee socks, textured and in solid colors, complete the outfit, as well as offer cozy warmth on chilly fall days.

And, when it comes to cool days, fashion favors layering. Among the top choices of the back-to-school shopper are layered looks that blend fashion favorites in ways both practical and unexpected.

For example, no-nonsense knit tops are layered under feminine slip dresses with sweetheart necklines. And, while a plaid, hooded bodysuit is a natural partner for denim overalls, layering a denim vest over a slim column dress gives fresh appeal to both pieces.

In fact, the versatility of denim is a season highlight, pairing with everything from column dresses in the rich tones of hunter green, berry and nut brown, to suede athletic jackets to black leather vests.

It's truly a season that offers the back-to-school shopper both function and fashion.

Classic black ribbed sweater (right) teams up with fresh and flirty black-and-white checked pleated suspender skirt and over-the-knee socks for one of the newest back-to-school looks. Boldly striped ribbed cardigan top in red, white and black is an eye-catching contrast to button-front suspender skirt in subtle plaid. Over-the-knee socks complete the look. ANP Special Photo

Bright colors, plaids are popular for elementary school students

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Bright colors and plaids are all the rage this fall for back-to-school wear for elementary students.

Along with the fushias, magentas, turquoise, sulfur yellows and peacock greens, younger students in high fashion can be caught wearing "Lion King" apparel and backpacks.

Colorful leggings for girls with longer flower-patterned shirts and jogging pants suits for boys and girls make great comfortable fashion wear for the fall and can be worn with tennis shoes.

Baggy pants are trendy styles for young boys and colorful jumpers are fashionable for girls.

Accessories for elementary girls include bright colored headbands, twist hair ties and over the shoulder purses, soft canvas hats with flowers, and berets and suspenders for guys and girls.

Scottish plaids and sweaters are the hot for elementary girls and boys. Red, white and navy kilts, ruffled silk and cotton shirts, long white and short, ruffled socks and slip-on dress shoes are a stylish dress for school girls. Vests are also a popular item with boys and girls, as well as plaid knit hooded tops and zip-up plaid jackets.

Colorful leggings and jumpers will be the popular trend for students this fall.

Turtle necks make a great addition under sweaters for boys and beneath plaid dress jumpers for girls. Long navy and plaid sweaters are in style for younger children as well.

The layered look with stripes and plaids is making news with teens this year.

Long, body-hugging knit dresses with slits up the side are dressy yet comfortable for young women wanting to turn heads.

Accompanied with hats, headbands, long necklaces and low-cut, boot-style shoes, these casual dresses and leggings worn with long sweaters, layered tops and vests make a unforgettable fashion impression.

Suspenders are back in style for teens and can be worn with tucked in sweaters. Corduroy city shorts worn with tights are fashionable for girls and corduroy trousers are popular with both sexes worn with longer sweaters.

Styles of the 1960s are making a splash with older youths. With hair styles similar to the decade, young women look great in 1960s style loose fitting short dresses with the added touch of the current looks including scrunch socks, boot style shoes and ankle high cowboy boots.

Ruffled shirts for teen girls are stylish with almost any accents including vests and sweaters. New wave trousers are the latest rage with loose-fitting pant legs and long, hanging belts.

Bomber jackets are still a popular item with the guys and worn with corduroy trousers and long sweaters, a casual look becomes quite fashionable.

The outdoor and workout looks for teens include baggy light-weight jacket-and-pant sweat suits. The look is especially appealing for guys with high top sneakers and baseball hats worn backward.

College students vote for jeans

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

College campuses will be the forum for fashion dos and do nots this fall as students don their best baggy jeans and flannel shirts in hopes of enticing a member of the opposite sex.

Michele Young, a 21-year-old Canton Township resident, said she will be returning to the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor in platform shoes, painted clothing and love beads.

"You take a pair of shorts or a shirt and paint them," she said. "You can also put studs in them or rip them."

When she is in the mood for something less dramatic, however, she will change her look to reveal a pair of combat boots, Daisy Dukes (short shorts) and an oversized sweatshirt promoting her soon-to-be alma mater.

"But I won't be wearing anything that costs more than $10," she said. "I shop the sales at Winkleman's and go to the Jacobson's outlet in Troy."

Carrie Denstedt, 18, also likes the "grunge look" (flannels, baggy jeans), but the college freshman said she could often be seen in crop tops, denim shirts or mini-kilts.

"You know those short, Catholic-school, pleated skirts," said the early childhood development major. "I also like the big sweatshirts."

For 20-year-old Jay Zamora, an electrical engineering student at Wayne State University, it takes about $100 to buy one good outfit including jeans, shirt and shoes, which explains why he has not done a lot of clothes shopping this summer.

"Kids' clothes are always going to be expensive, because if it is in style, people will buy it," he said, "and Birch Run is too far away."

Zamora favors baggy jeans, flannel shirts and oversized t-shirts, but unlike the girls, he believes combat shoes are dying out.

"Colored jeans are also fading," he said. "Now people wear in-door soccer shoes and any kind of jeans, as long as they are baggy."

To be in style, the local resident said you need apparel by Stussy or Mossimo, the newest name in shirts and hats. He believes last year names like Kari Kani and Guess are on their way out.

rebuilt."

Erwin said he has been rebuilding carburetors since he was 14 years old.

"Ever since I have been in business," he said "my shops have been famous for their life-time guarantees. If for any reason our rebuilt carburetors fail, we will redo them at no charge. It has become known locally as 'Howard's guarantee.' We don't know of anyone else making such an offer."

"U.S.A. Carburetors does not diagnose carburetor problems, but when the devices are hand delivered to our shops, we rebuild them often in less than two to three hours," Erwin said.

Erwin said his partner, Jim, takes the carburetors off the vehicles and puts them back on.

"We specialize in rebuilding foreign and domestic carburetors and even work on Mitsubishi 2.6 Chryslers," he said.

Erwin said U.S.A. Carburetors will cut their low prices even more for Associated Newspaper VIP Card owners.

"We will take another $20 off the price of the life-time guaranteed rebuilt carburetors and give a $5 discount on rebuilt alternators and starters that carry one-year warranties," Erwin said.

The shop is open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. For further information call 1-313-592-1280.

Quote of the Week

"Those who embrace the status quo prevail. Instead of working on curriculum, our board must focus their attention on replacing Dr. (Larry) Thomas and lose yet another year of development."

Laurel Raisanen, Wayne-Westland school board member, commenting on the resignation of Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas which the school board recently accepted. Raisanen was the only board member who opposed the resignation.

Of Note

Blaze destroys greenhouse

Three-fourths of the Westland Fire Department personnel were busy Friday morning battling a blaze which destroyed the greenhouse on Wayne County property where area senior citizens grow large crops of fruits and vegetables.

The greenhouse and a building attached to it, located on the south side of Michigan Avenue west of Henry Ruff, were leveled, according to Westland Assistant Fire Chief George Riley.

Firefighters fought the blaze for more than three hours beginning at 5:50 a.m. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

"It's a suspicious fire. We'll have to investigate," Riley said.

The contents of the buildings, including plant seeds and possibly farming equipment, were completely destroyed, according to Riley.

Final conference set for area man

A Sept. 16 final conference has been scheduled for an Inkster man charged with first-degree criminal sexual conduct before Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge Margie Braxton.

Frederick Milliner, 18, is accused of allegedly sexually assaulting a 12-year-old at a home in Wayne July 11.

The incident was allegedly consensual between the youngster and the defendant, according to Wayne police Sgt. Bob McIntyre.

"The court, however, does not see this as consensual when you're dealing with a minor," McIntyre said. "The victim was visiting her relatives before the incident occurred."

The Inkster man was allegedly invited over to the house where the girl was visiting. He and the 12-year-old allegedly had sexual intercourse.

Milliner was arraigned Aug. 2 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold, and a $10,000 cash bond was set.

The Aug. 10 examination was waived for Milliner, and he was bound over to Recorder's Court.

Police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

Westland men face court conference

Two Westland men charged with felonious assault and ethnic intimidation are expected to appear for a conference Sept. 9 in Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court before Judge Leonard Townsend.

Eric Bolek and Michael Jablonski allegedly chased a Wayne man with a bat Aug. 1 on Michigan Ave. in Wayne.

The three victims are white, and the alleged resident was expected to be Recorder's Court. The incident took place in a building on Wayne Ave. "The three victims and I."

Boyfriend suspected in brutal murder

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Westland police have arrested a Wayne man in connection with the brutal stabbing death of his girlfriend, whose bloodied body was found around 10:52 a.m. Tuesday with a knife driven through her mouth, according to Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue.

The body of 34-year-old Jane Fray of Westland was discovered by her mother, who became suspicious when her daughter's vehicle remained outside her home after the woman should have left for work, according to Donohue.

Her 38-year-old Wayne boyfriend was arrested after neighbors reported they heard arguing in the trailer between 4:30 and 5 a.m.

The woman, whose body was found on the bedroom floor of her trailer, located at 309 Cashew in the Westland Meadows Trailer Park, suffered from multiple stab wounds in the chest, neck and head, Donohue said.

The weapon used was a long kitchen knife, believed to be from the victim's home, Donohue added.

Her 38-year-old Wayne boyfriend was arrested after neighbors reported they heard arguing in the trailer between 4:30 and 5 a.m. The two had been dating for approximately four months prior to the stabbing and had no previous problems, according to police.

Police are awaiting the results of the autopsy and are continuing their investigation into the fatal stabbing. No charges were filed against the boyfriend as of Friday morning.

Labor of love Mother needs one more miracle for bundle of joy

Even with her special psychic gifts, Elizabeth DeSouza could never have predicted the complications which accompanied the birth of her daughter this spring.

DeSouza, known throughout the area as the psychic Elizabeth, went into the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor as scheduled April 8 for the delivery and expected to take her healthy baby home April 12. While Briana Estrellita DeSouza was healthy and well, complications occurred leaving the new mother in critical condition and on life support systems. Given a 5-percent chance to live, DeSouza suffered two heart attacks during the ordeal and was in a coma for 12 weeks.

While her condition has improved considerably, she still needs one more miracle to see her daughter home.

Mayor fires city assessor

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Westland City Assessor Karen Hardin was fired by Mayor Robert Thomas Wednesday afternoon, sending shock waves through City Hall, according to several city employees.

Hardin, contacted at home, confirmed that Thomas dismissed her after approaching her Monday afternoon and giving her the option of submitting her resignation or being fired. Hardin chose the dismissal, she said, because she was given no reason for the action or her separation from her employment.

"He gave me one day to do that (resign). I decided I was not going to resign. If he'd fire me, let him fire me," Hardin said.

According to the former city employee, she never received any explanation for her release, however, she said she suspects the basis for her termination may be a personal conflict between her and the mayor.

"As far as I know I haven't done anything wrong in my job. I've been complimented by numerous other people in and outside of the city. I never had any problems with other employees," Hardin said. "The only thing I can surmise is that it's a personality clash."

That personality clash may have stemmed from an argument between the two earlier in the year over "something that should have been done by law," Hardin refused to elaborate regarding the issue, saying only that she remained adamant her position in the dispute was legally correct.

Later in the year, Hardin was asked to fill out one of the performance evaluations issued to city directors, which asks questions pertaining to the city budget and asks for a written opinion about the mayor's job performance.

In this first evaluation, Hardin said, she "stated my opinion" regarding the earlier argument between the two. "I also said something to the effect that I think he should let the directors run their departments," Hardin said. "He said he hired me because I knew my job ... and I had heard of other departments he had interfered with."

A person-to-person evaluation was the next step.

"We talked about our goals and things he had on his mind. He didn't state he had any problems the last time. Then, a few months later, there was another written evaluation," Hardin said.

The second evaluation was made a week prior to Hardin's

Youth preacher accused of sexually assaulting teen faces examination

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Deputy News Editor

A Wayne man, who is a former youth pastor at Free Will Baptist Church in Taylor, is accused of sexually assaulting a 15-year-old girl in his parish.

Michael DeWayne Aldridge, 33, is charged with five counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct for allegedly sexually assaulting the Brownstown Township victim at his home in Wayne.

The defendant had allegedly been observing the teen for the last three years, according to Lt. Mel Drews.

"The minor's parents came forward with the information," Drews said. "The incident took place while the defendant was a youth pastor at the church between March 20 and May 21 of this year."

Drews said Aldridge allegedly used his influence to lure the girl to his home in Wayne.

The 33-year-old was arraigned in an out county court

"The incident took place while the defendant was a youth pastor at the church between March 20 and May 21 of this year."

Lt. Mel Drews

Aug. 20, and a $500,000 bond was set. He is being held in the Wayne County jail until his examination Aug. 31 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold.

Drews said there have been no complaints from other parents against Aldridge while he was a youth pastor at Free Will Baptist Church.

If the defendant is found guilty, he could receive up to life in prison for the five counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Sex sting

'Woman' was definitely not a lady

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The driver of the late-model Cadillac pulled up at the curb on Michigan Avenue and apparently liked the merchandise that high-heeled lady in the tight shorts was displaying.

The driver, in a purple dress that covered the arms and fell well below the knee to cover a pair of hairy legs which definitely needed to be shaved, stopped the car and lowered the passenger-side window.

The driver then called out to the young and attractive lady, who glanced over at the woman in the car and wondered what she wanted.

This, she felt, was surely an unusual patron - one she had not dealt with in the past.

The driver motioned the lady over and asked in a deep masculine voice: How much for oral sex?

Momentarily speechless, the lady of the street regained her composure and continued to play her role. She looked at the strange woman who suddenly revealed the true grit.

"I'm not a woman," said the driver in the car, and pulling up the dress he revealed his sexual organs.

The lady quickly identified herself as an Inkster police officer and placed the transsexual under arrest for soliciting sex and added a second charge of indecent exposure.

The suspect was one of 25 men arrested during the week in a "sting operation" conducted by members of the Inkster police and auxiliary forces and coordinated by Lt. Wilbert Reid and Charles Hines, director of the Inkster Auxiliary Police.

Three decoys were used, according to Hines, who said that the number of arrests in recent days has reached 143.

"Most of the suspects were charged with soliciting," Hines continued. "As you know we have had several of these 'sting' operations over the past few weeks, and it's interesting to note that none of these people are second-time offenders."

"These are new faces, but they still come from the same areas like Westland and Wayne and Canton."

Off to kindergarten

Youth looks forward to Kindergarten

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

During the summer, Jesse Hogan learned to ride a two-wheel bike and scored a hole-in-one in putt-putt golf. Now, as kindergarten classes are starting, he is ready for anything.

The 5-year-old Van Buren Township boy, the son of Patrick and Sherry Hogan, has only one worry about school - that his mother will kiss him good-bye in front of his friends. But, if he can board the school bus with his sister, Tara, 9, without a kiss, everything will be all right.

"I've got new jeans and new shirts - striped shirts - and I'm getting new shoes. And I've got Lion King folders."

Jesse Hogan

"I've got new jeans and new shirts - striped shirts - and I'm getting new shoes," he said. "And, I've got Lion King folders."

For now, the folders are empty, but Jesse expects to put drawings, finger paintings and lessons in them next week.

In preparation for kindergarten, Tara has been playing school with Jesse during the summer.

"He can do pluses and minuses and he knows the names of colors and can spell," said his proud sister.

"I can bake cookies, too, like my dad," Jesse said, adding that his dad didn't score a putt-putt hole-in-one this summer like he did.

Last year, Jesse attended pre-school classes at the Quirk School and reported that he liked "everything" about it.

He is looking forward to going to Edgemont Elementary School with his neighborhood friends and also looks forward to meeting new friends.

When Tara, a fourth-grader started school, she was also filled with confidence, her parents recalled.

"She said, 'Don't take me to the bus. I'm a big girl now. I'm on my own,'" said Sherry Hogan.

Youngster hopes to meet friends

His mom has prepared him well and now 4-year-old Ryan Kennedy of Westland is excited about starting kindergarten at Lincoln Elementary School and getting to know other children his age.

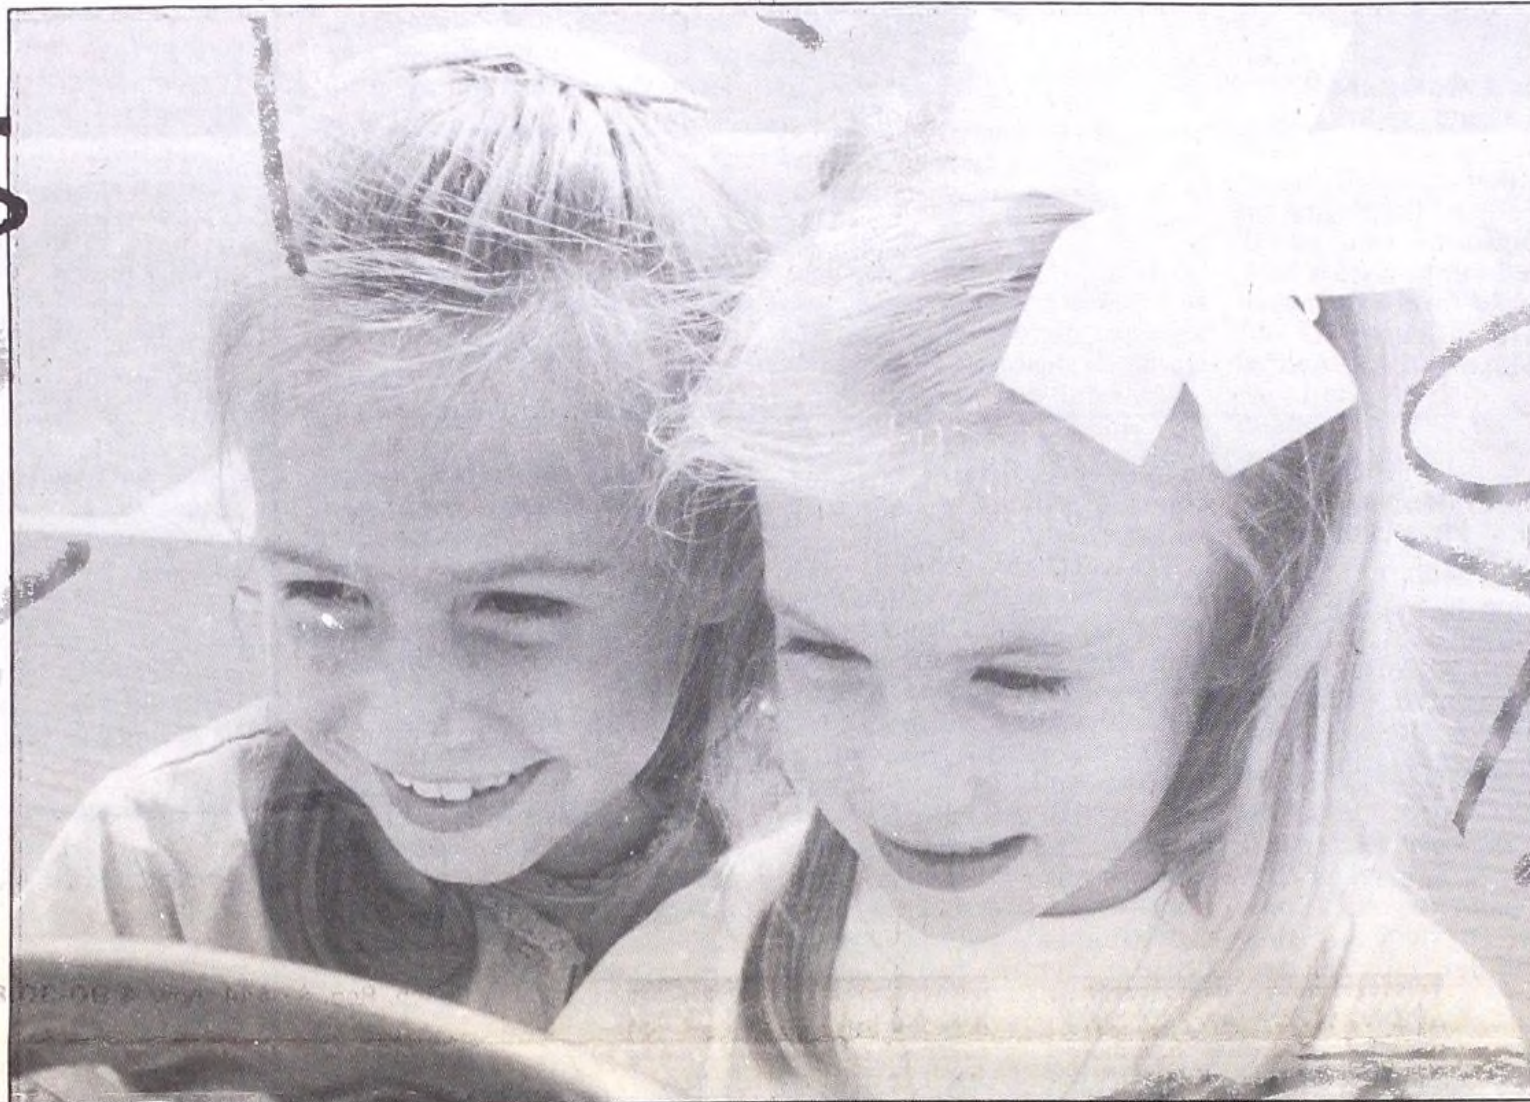

Kennedy just made the fall deadline with a birth date of Dec. 1 and he's looking forward to spending time in class with his new neighborhood friend, Ashley, who just recently moved nearby.

Having learned his A,B,Cs, shapes, colors and good behavior, Kennedy's mom, along with the help of television shows like Sesame Street and Barney, have prepared the youngster for school days.

"I do a lot of home learning with pre-school books. I did everything with him," mother Carol Kennedy said. "He's good mannered," she added, "all I have to do is tell him something and he responds."

"It's been just me and him these last four years," Carol Kennedy said.

Kennedy said he is not afraid of starting school and is looking forward to spending his next birthday with his classmates at Little Caesar's pizzeria.

Future doctor attends St. Mary's

She is only 5 years old, but Wayne resident Chelsea Symkowski said she is ready to start Kindergarten and begin her education because she hopes to be a doctor when she grows up.

Symkowski will be attending St. Mary's School in Wayne.

"I won't be riding a bus, my mom will be taking me to school," Symkowski said.

It wasn't difficult for the youngster to decide how she wants to make her first impression with her classmates in regards to her fashionable back-to-school clothing.

Symkowski is required to wear the traditional school uniform of blue plaid, according to her mother Sarah Symkowski.

"This will be the first year any of my children will attend a Catholic School," Sarah Symkowski said. "Chelsea has been attending pre-school at Sottlemeyer to help her prepare for kindergarten."

Sister offers advice to sibling

The first day of school can be very traumatic for a child beginning kindergarten, but knowing that she has an older sister at the same school is helping a local student cope with her anxiety.

Maria Tricoli, 4-1/2, will be one of many students going to a new school Aug. 30 as Tonda Elementary School opens their doors for the first time. She will walk to the neighborhood school with sister Megan, who will enter the second grade.

Maria Tricoli will be in Jean LaPointe's morning class with her friend, Kimmy. Together the friends will learn how to read and meet new people.

"I'm excited about going to class," she said with her eyes to the ground, "but I'm not excited about waking up early."

In preparation for the event, the girls and their mother have made their "back-to-school" purchases, centering on clothes. Maria picked out a few outfits, but for the most part, she thanked her sister for not ruining the clothes she had bought when she was younger.

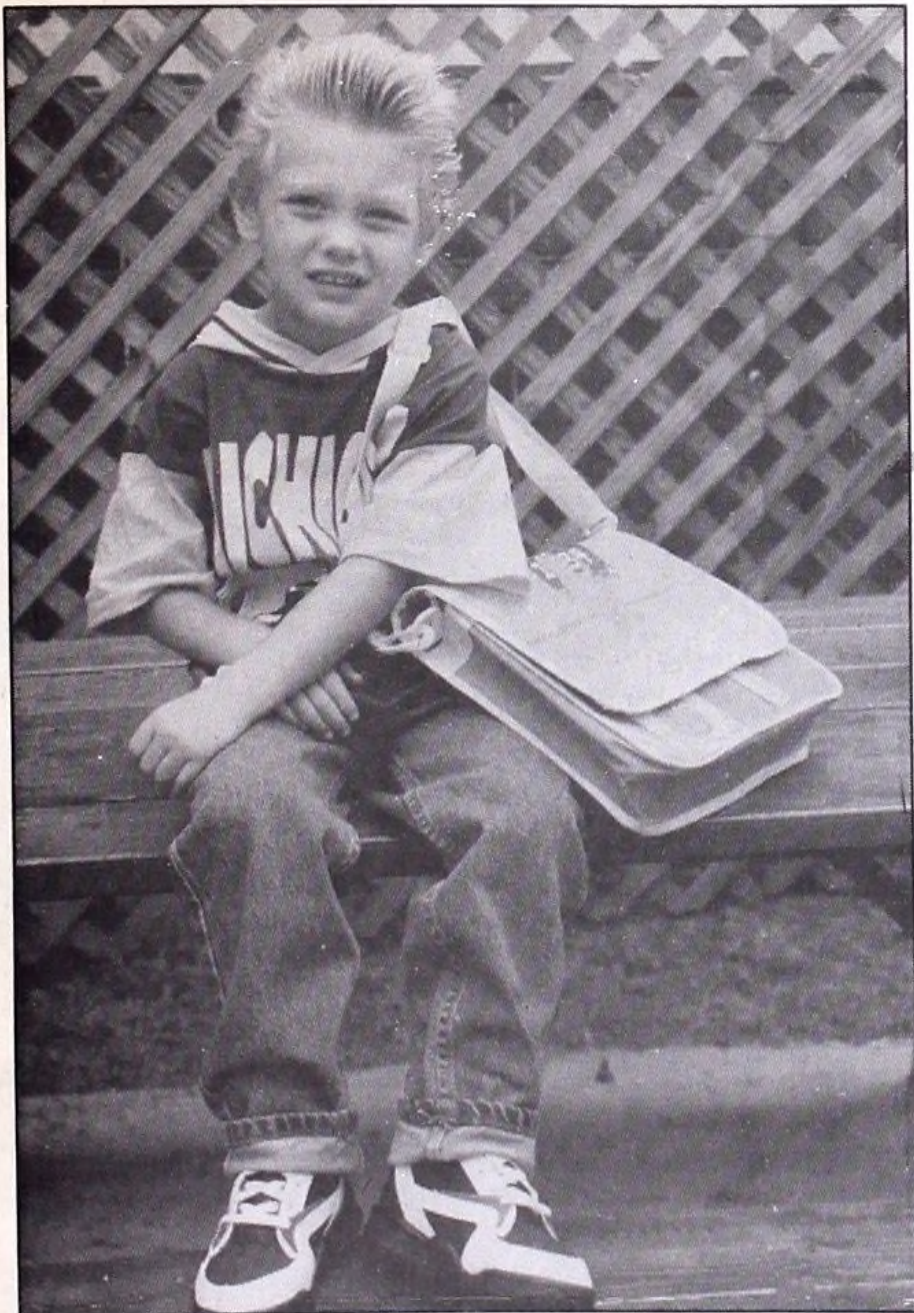

The new kindergarten pupil thinks a lot of her sister. "I want to be as smart as her one day," she said, "and my favorite book, Hop on Pop, belongs to my sister."

The youngster denied any possibility that she was going to school to meet a boyfriend saying, "I wanna learn how to read."

Whenever Maria gets nervous in school, she said she will think about her "mommy," who is just a phone call away.

According to the young student, the best thing about her first year will be her schedule.

"I'll be out before my sister so I can play with the dollies, make up dances and play the Aladdin game," she said.

Woman convicted of murder receives lengthy prison sentence

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Convicted of second-degree murder for starting a house fire which caused the death of 21-year-old Westland resident Steven Rosati in December 1993, Laura Faulk of Detroit was sentenced to 20 to 60 years in prison.

Faulk, 25, was originally charged with first-degree murder, but was convicted of the lesser offense by Detroit Recorder's Judge Vera Massey Jones. The conviction followed two psychiatric evaluations which determined her capacity to determine the severity of her action.

Faulk, who lived in the apartment below the victim, at 6302 Tarnow Street in Detroit, was charged after Detroit fire officials determined the cause of fire to be charcoal lighter fluid, which was poured on the steps which led up to Mr. Rosati's apartment, according to testimony.

Mr. Rosati's body was found lying on the floor in a small sun room toward the back of the old home subdivided into three apartments, Detroit Police Sgt. Thomas Blackstone said.

Blackstone speculated that Mr. Rosati may have been trying to escape from the home

"We have a three family building thats basically gutted, and you say her intent was for the smoke to draw him out."

when he died of smoke inhalation.

"He probably was headed that way and ran out of air," Blackstone surmised.

According to family members, Mr. Rosati was renting an apartment in the home where he lived for about four weeks. His sister, Peggy Fenwick, said Faulk was an acquaintance of her brother.

Faulk's defense was that she did not have the capacity to know the end result of the deadly blaze.

Dr. Hampton Walker, Jr., a clinical psychologist unit chief for the Bureau of Forensic Mental Health Services, testified that although he determined Faulk to be sane at the time of the crime, he did say she suffered from manic depression, mood swings between extreme sadness and energized states which manifest in the form of agitation or elation. These, he said, could have caused her to have a lack of capacity to form the intent to commit the offense.

"She told me there was a dispute between herself and Mr. Rosati and it had arisen over an argument about a television set and some money," Walker testified.

According to testimony, Faulk attempted to continue that dispute with Mr. Rosati when he ended the conversation by shutting his apartment door and refusing to respond to Faulk's voice and knocking.

"The lack of response on his part ... elevated her agitation and she felt she had to do something. She said, she thought she would 'smoke him out,'" Walker said.

Prosecutor Augustus Hutting questioned Faulk's action after lighting the fire, saying that if she wanted to get the deceased out of his apartment to confront him, why did she leave the house without telling Mr. Rosati or her downstairs neighbor about the blaze.

"We have a three-family building that's basically gutted," Hutting said, "and you say her intent was for the smoke to draw him out."

According to the prosecutor, Faulk's downstairs neighbor and a plumber, who was at the location while Faulk was arguing with the victim, testified that Faulk threatened to kill Mr. Rosati.

The plumber testified that Faulk said, "You'll get yours," according to Hutting, who added, "Ultimately in this case the deceased did get his."

The downstairs neighbor testified that she was so frightened she fled the home with her infant, according to Hutting.

"The situation escalated. There were at least two calls to the police accusing him (Rosati) of assault and battery. When police interviewed Mr. Rosati they discovered lighter fluid on the stairway," Walker testified.

According to Walker, police advised the deceased about the flammable liquid and warned him to clean it up.

"He told police there was no problem and he wasn't concerned about the lighter fluid. He perceived the situation as no big deal," Walker testified.

The victim's parents, Anthony and Carol Rosati, are well-known in Westland for their long-time participation as organizers of the annual Westland Junior Miss competition.

erably since then, and she has awakened from a coma and is working toward living independent of medical care, she still has many surgeries ahead of her and a very long and difficult period of physical rehabilitation.

"I'm taking it day by day," DeSouza said, adding that she would not be able to return to work until she recovered from all of the medical treatments.

"I had septicemia, a poisoning of the system. All my vital organs shut down," DeSouza said.

In addition to coping with numerous physical disabilities in conjunction with the many demands associated with caring for an infant, DeSouza has many financial debts and expenses.

Because she is self-employed as the owner of the Westland-based Psychic Connection, her survival and the well-being of her baby rely on her ability to generate an income -- something she has not done and will not be able to do for many months to come.

To help the well-known businesswoman and her baby begin their lives together, a fund has been established to assist with the purchase of infant necessities.

With the recent approval of the Westland City Council, the Jaycees will be soliciting donations for that fund on street corners throughout the city from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 10, according to Westland Jaycees Chapter Chaplin Bob Checchi. Checchi said DeSouza has been a member of the Jaycees several years and was instrumental in encouraging him to become a member.

"We'll be at eight different corners in Westland trying to raise at least $2,000," Checchi said.

Checks or money orders can be sent to Briana's Rainbow Fund, 7359 Kingston Court, Westland, Mich. 48185. Checks should be made payable to the fund.

DeSouza has provided a regular horoscope column in the Associated Newspapers for the last three years.

Hines also pointed out that the latest harvest of sex-seekers in the city will be returned to the 22nd District Court sometime in September to answer to the charges. He said that he would provide the media with a list of "every one who is charged with soliciting as soon as the paper work is completed.

"We got a lot of catch-up work to do, and we'll give you guys (media) the names as soon as we can."

Asked why the "johns" pick the city of Inkster to do their hunting, Hines replied: "I really can't answer that. Maybe you can after they face the judge."

dismissal. In that questionnaire, Hardin stated that she was pleased with the mayor's service to the citizens of Westland. However, she added, that she was upset with the lack of pay raises she received during her two years as the city assessor.

"I complimented him on how well he handled the staff and how excellently he was running the city for the citizens. Then I told him I was unhappy and that I felt I should have a pay raise," Hardin said.

"I'd been there 2-1/2 years with only a 2-percent increase and I had more experience than any previous assessors and a total of 15 years experience with the City of Westland."

Hardin became upset when she discovered that the mayor had hired two other male directors at a higher rate than she was earning.

"I know I have more experience with the city than a lot of his directors," the 53-year-old assessor said. "Before I was the assessor, I worked for the city from 1975 to 1988. In 1981, I ended up in the assessor's office as a secretary and worked my way up."

Does full moon spark violence?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Unlike the welcome harvest moon which provides farmers an opportunity to work through the night to bring in the crops before the cold weather sets in, a full moon is a sure sign of trouble, according to area police officers.

Crime seems to multiply threefold when the cycle of the moon peaks, police contend. There was a full moon Tuesday night.

And there was definitely a lot of unrest in the city of Inkster which had a number of felonious assaults and robberies.

In the 27000 block of Avondale Avenue, a couple began a domestic argument which ended when the 29-year-old woman picked up the telephone and slammed it down on her husband's head.

When the injured male retreated to a bedroom, the irate wife followed and leaped on him. He managed to get out of the house and later called police.

Police are interviewing the couple to see whether any charges should be filed.

Then, in the 30000 block of Pine Street, a 31-year-old woman told police that she and her husband became involved in an argument, and her husband tried to choke her.

Police who arrived on the scene to investigate a "domestic quarrel" complaint discovered red marks around the woman's neck and launched a search for the husband.

Later in the evening, the man allegedly attempted to force a window to get into the house, but police, thanks in part to the full moon, spotted him and took him into custody.

In an unrelated incident, a 27-year-old woman also received a scare Tuesday night. She said she was sitting on her porch with some friends in the 1000 block of Fairwood when a car pulled up in front of the house. One of the men got out and approached the group.

Without a warning, the man picked up a bike that was leaning on the side of the house and tossed it at the woman. The woman suffered a swollen right arm and wrist.

The culprit then returned to the car and warned: "The next time we'll shoot up your house."

The woman told police she didn't know why she was singled out for the assault. Police officers said that they are investigating.

A teenage girl tried to run her boyfriend over Aug. 16 at The Crossing at Canton apartment complex following an argument about her health, police said.

The victim, a 20-year-old Westland resident, told authorities that he jumped out of the 1988 Escort, driven by his 17-year-old girlfriend, to talk to a friend residing in the complex. As the man approached the building, the Redford teen drove the car over the curb, across 50 feet of grass and struck him with the passenger side of the vehicle, police said.

The man complained of soreness after rolling off the hood of the car and landing against a tree, but refused transport to the hospital.

Two residents witnessed the incident. One attempted to follow the driver, but was unable to keep up because of the way in which the teen was driving, he told police. He was only able to write down the license plate number and give it to the officers.

Officers searched the area for the vehicle and two female occupants, but were unsuccessful in their search. Redford police officers located the car in the girl's driveway a short time later with "fresh front-end damage on the passenger side," police reports of the incident indicate.

The Westland man told police the girl ran him down because he did not believe her when she said she was seven months pregnant. He asked her why if she was pregnant, she was not showing any signs.

The man hopes to press charges against the driver for felonious assault with a motor vehicle. Both witnesses can identify the driver and the passenger, who were rumored to be laughing as they drove away.

The driver's parents called the police station hours after the incident and explained that their daughter had a different version of the incident.

According to the mother, the teen said that her boyfriend was abusing her on the drive to the apartment complex, authorities said. The woman told police that when the man exited the vehicle, her daughter wanted to get out of the complex as quickly as possible and swerved around a stopped car causing her to accidentally strike the boyfriend.

The case is still being investigated.

A soft drink cost a Westland couple more than they had planned for Wednesday night.

Tammy and Armin Phillips, who reside in the 6000 block of Yale Street, told Inkster police that they had stopped at a party store located in the 3700 block of Middlebelt Road around 11:30 p.m. to purchase soft drinks.

After making their purchase, the couple returned to their vehicle and were about to get in when two men, one armed with a knife, stepped out of the darkness and told the Westland residents to get in.

The knife-wielding man slipped into the rear passenger side of the vehicle and placed the silver-bladed kitchen knife to the woman's

Parolee charged in purse snatching

By JENNIFER PLACINTO

A Redford Township man, who was on parole after serving 11 years in prison on armed robbery charges, was deemed competent to stand trial on unarmed robbery charges and bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court for an alleged purse snatching outside a Westland grocery store in late January.

Donald Sheridan Duggan, 35, is being held in Wayne County Jail on a $10,000 cash bond pending his next court appearance.

According to the competency report issued by the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, Duggan consumes alcohol and has blackouts as a result, Wayne County Prosecutor Thomas Trzcinski said. Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh also testified that Duggan's signed a written confession which stated he had been drinking all day prior to the robbery.

Victim Sally Roland, testified that she had exited her car and was in the process of entering a market, located at 7300 Middlebelt in Westland, when a man came around the side of the building.

"I slowed up because I saw him coming around fast and I thought he must need something," Roland said. "He shoved me and grabbed my purse and took off running. I yelled 'come back here with my purse.'"

Roland testified that she was carrying the white leather purse over her shoulder when the assailant shoved pushed her from the side. She lost her balance, but avoided falling by grabbing a nearby railing. The woman added that when she saw the robber flee, she remembered him running slowly. Roland then proceeded inside the store to report the robbery.

The robber got away with a watch, some credit cards and $10 cash, she added.

Defense attorney Steven

Sonenburg questioned the woman about her inability to positively identify the suspect police showed her later that evening. However, it was revealed during testimony that the suspect in question was the first suspect police arrested and not Duggan.

Livonia police arrested Duggan the following evening at midnight after receiving a complaint of disorderly people at the Comfort Inn, located on Middlebelt north of Schoolcraft.

"We found a husband and wife arguing. His wife wanted him to go back home with her and he didn't want to leave," Livonia police officer Mark Wheeler said.

According to Wheeler, Duggan agreed to leave the location and went over to one of the beds in the room and pushed up the mattress, pulling out a purse.

"I looked and noticed that his wife already had a purse, so I asked him who it belonged to," Wheeler said. "He said it belonged to his sister-in-law and he grabbed it by accident thinking it was his wife's. Then he said it was his sister's."

Suspicious, the officer obtained identification from the purse and asked Duggan's wife if his sister's last name was Roland. When she said it wasn't, an officer telephoned Roland and learned of the purse snatching.

Defense attorney Steven Sonenburg questioned the right of the police to search the purse, however, Judge Bokos responded that police did have the right because, "you must have the right to possession of ownership before you have the right to (claim a violation under) search and seizure."

Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh said he obtained a written confession from Duggan which stated that after taking the purse, Duggan obtained a ride to the Comfort Inn where he was met the next day by his wife whom he told about the robbery. According to Haigh, Duggan said he wanted to mail the purse back to the woman.

Local dealer lends helping hand to children's camp

When the Muscular Dystrophy Association, (MDA) suddenly came up one van short for their summer camp, Tennyson Chevrolet of Livonia was contacted and fulfilled the need.

Connie Groth, arts and crafts director of the MDA summer camp, said Tennyson supplied a Lumina for transporting the things needed to help the camp operate. The van also stood by as an emergency vehicle for the medically-fragile campers.

"We've worked with Connie through the dealership for five years and we have seen how committed MDA parents are," said Keith Lang, Business Manager of Tennyson Chevrolet. "We told her anytime we could help out we'd be more than happy to do so."

Groth said she contacted Tennyson because she has first-hand experience in their dedication to customer service.

She explained the MDA pays as much of the one-week camp operating expenses as possible, but a large percentage of the costs must be met by outside donations, such as the Tennyson van loan.

"Every donation helps tremendously," Groth added. "It was such short notice, Tennyson was wonderful in pulling it all together," she said.

Groth, who also acts as a staff member on the activities committee of the volunteer-run camp, said her only daughter lives with muscular dystrophy. For this reason, she realizes how important the camp is in giving children with muscular dystrophy an opportunity to live their lives to the fullest.

Tennyson Chevrolet has been serving the community for 39 years and is located at 32570 Plymouth Road.
